

GRADE: MYP 2 SUMMATIVE ASSESSMENT 1
SUB: English Language and Literature	Points 25	Time: 40 min.
CRITERIA AND STRANDS: Criteria A: Analysing Strand i, ii, iv Criteria D: Using Language Strands i, ii, iii
DATE:
NAME OF THE STUDENT:
SECTION:

COMMAND TERMS	Meaning
Identify	Provide an answer from several possibilities.
Comment	Give a judgment based on a given statement or result of a calculation.
Analyse	Break down in order to bring out the essential elements or structure.
Compare and contrast	Give an account of the similarities and differences between two (or more) items or contrast situations, referring to both (all) of them throughout. This involves finding and evaluating the significance of similarities and connections between texts and requires the student to make a literary analysis.

Overall level achieved in Criterion _____

Criteria A	Criteria D	Overall level
		(A+D) = Overall Level =

Teacher's Signature:

Parent's Signature:

Task 1 Read the following extracts and answer the questions below. (Criterion A – 7 Points)

Text 1: “Farewell to the City”

Anna pressed her back against the rough stone, breath quick as the chill of October seeped through her patched woollen cloak. Outside, the bells of St. Mary-le-Bow tolled noon, their echoes tumbling down the narrow alleys of plague-ridden 1665 London. She dared not step into the bustling street, where the red cross painted on her door marked her family’s fate for all to see.

Carts rumbled past, wheels muddy from last night’s heavy rain, as the corpse-bearers called out, “Bring out your dead!” Anna’s hands, chapped and raw, clutched her father’s leather-bound journal. Its worn pages, filled with recipes for rose-vinegar and comfrey salve, were her defence against the creeping dread. She remembered his steady voice: “Knowledge is armor, Anna.”

Outside, the city smelled of fear and smoke, but inside, Anna tried to conjure courage from memories and the promise of another dawn.

Glossary:

seeped – to spread or diffuse

tolled – loss or damage incurred through a disaster

alleys – street or passageway

chapped – cracked, rough, or sore

1a. Identify and explain any three conventions of historical fiction shown in the passage. (Criterion A - 3 Points)

Any relevant points from the class discussion and notes (1 point each):

1. Realistic Historical Setting

2. Blend of Fact and Fiction

3. Authentic Characters

4. Descriptive Language

5. Historical Accuracy

6. Themes Linked to History

7.. Author’s Note (sometimes)

Expected level of answer:

1. Historical Setting: The story is set in London during the year 1665, specifically referencing the time and atmosphere of the Great Plague, with details such as "plague-ridden 1665 London," the "red cross painted on her door," and "corpse-bearers"—all historically accurate details from that period.
2. Period Details: The passage includes sensory and material details—such as Anna's "patched woolen cloak," the "bells of St. Mary-le-Bow," "rose-vinegar and comfrey salve," and "leather-bound journal"—that ground the story authentically in its time.
3. Ordinary Individuals in Extraordinary Circumstances: The protagonist, Anna, is a fictional character, yet she is embedded in real historical events. This blending of fictional characters with true historical context is a hallmark of the genre.
4. Authentic Language and Perspective: The language choice ("chill of October," "bring out your dead!") and the focus on daily survival give a sense of lived experience in the past.

1b. Comment on how the setting contributes to the mood of the passage.

(Criterion A - 2 Points)

Sample answer - two points with specific setting details needed (Any relevant answer; 1 point each)

The setting of plague-ridden London creates a mood of fear, isolation, and uncertainty. The imagery of muddy streets, corpse carts, and smoke-filled air evokes a grim atmosphere. The historical context adds a sense of urgency and danger, deepening the emotional intensity of Anna's inner world.

1c. Analyse how the author shows Anna's inner strength using specific evidence.

(Criterion A - 2 Points)

Sample answer - two character traits with specific evidence from the text needed. (1 Point each)

Anna's inner strength is revealed through her resilience and hope. Despite the fear around her, she draws comfort and courage from her father's journal, symbolizing her reliance on knowledge and memory. Her attempt to "conjure courage from memories" shows she is determined to remain brave even in the face of loss and danger.

Text 2: "Into the Storm Caves"

The roar of the waterfall was deafening as Zara crept along the slippery ledge, her torch flickering in the wind. Below her, the river crashed against sharp rocks, sending up clouds of icy spray.

She paused, staring at the narrow cave mouth hidden behind the curtain of falling water. This was it—the place the map had warned about. One wrong step, and she would vanish into the darkness below.

Clutching her satchel tight, she leapt across the gap. Her boots landed with a splash, and she disappeared into the shadows.

Glossary:

deafening – very loud

Ledge – a narrow surface projecting horizontally from a wall, a lintel (door or window)

Satchel – a bag or case

Task 2: Compare and contrast how the two texts use setting, character, and genre conventions to shape the story. (Write a paragraph of 150 –200 words) (Criterion A – 8 Points)

Sample Answer (both similarities & differences), covering all three aspects (setting, character, genre conventions) and linking to effects, analysis of effects, correct terminologies,

Both “Farewell to the City” and “Into the Storm Caves” use setting, character, and genre conventions to develop their narratives and reveal inner strength. In the first text, the historical setting of 1665 plague-era London is described in vivid sensory detail, such as corpse carts and red crosses, creating a grim mood of dread and decay. This aligns with historical fiction conventions that emphasize realism and period accuracy. Anna, the protagonist, draws strength from her father’s journal, showing emotional resilience and intellect as her tools for survival. In contrast, the second text uses the dangerous, natural setting of a roaring waterfall and hidden cave to heighten suspense, typical of adventure fiction. Zara’s strength is demonstrated through her physical bravery as she leaps across a deadly gap. While Anna relies on memory and knowledge to cope, Zara depends on action and courage. The settings in both texts directly influence the characters’ responses—Anna must remain hidden and survive emotionally, while Zara must act decisively in a high-risk environment. Despite their differences in genre, both stories highlight how challenging circumstances reveal the strength within their young female protagonists.

Task 3: Sentence Structures (Criterion D – 10 Points)

3a. Identify the sentence type (Simple / Compound / Complex) in each of the following: (Criterion D - 4 Points)

- i. The wind was cold and sharp.
- ii. Anna waited at the platform, and the train finally arrived.
- iii. Although Leo was exhausted, he kept climbing.
- iv. Zara lit her torch, stepped carefully into the cave, and listened for movement.

- i. Simple sentence – One independent clause with a compound predicate (cold and sharp).
- ii. Compound sentence – Two independent clauses joined by the coordinating conjunction "and".
- iii. Complex sentence – One dependent clause ("Although Leo was exhausted") and one independent clause ("he kept climbing").
- iv. Complex sentence – One independent clause with a compound verb (lit, stepped, listened). No conjunctions joining full clauses.

3b. Use the sentence structure type mentioned in brackets and rewrite the following ideas: (Criterion D - 3 Points)C

- i. Zara stood at the cave's edge. (Rewrite as a complex sentence)
- ii. The trench was muddy. The boots were soaked. (Combine as a compound sentence)
- iii. Although the sky turned black... (Complete the thought using a simple sentence)

Sample Answers

- i. Zara stood at the cave's edge because she heard a strange sound inside.
- ii. The trench was muddy, and the boots were soaked.
- iii. Although the sky turned black, it didn't rain.

3c. Describe a dramatic moment from one of the texts above in your own words using the type of sentence mentioned below: (Criterion D - 3 Points)

- i. One simple sentence
- ii. One compound sentence
- iii. One complex sentence

Sample Answers

- i. Zara leapt into the cave.
- ii. Anna clutched the journal, and the bells tolled above her.
- iii. Although she was terrified, Zara stepped onto the ledge.