

Storyboard

A storyboard is a visual planning tool that shows a sequence of events or scenes using drawings and brief text. It is like a comic strip that helps you organise your ideas before making a film, animation, advertisement, or presentation.

Each frame (or box) shows one key moment and includes notes about what is happening, what is said, what sounds are heard, or how the camera moves.

Conventions of a Storyboard:

- 1. Frames or Boxes:
 - Each scene is drawn in its own box, in order.
 - Usually 6–12 frames for a short storyboard.
- 2. Sketches or Drawings:
 - Simple sketches show characters, setting, and action.
 - Stick figures are fine if they show the idea clearly!
- 3. Captions or Descriptions:
 - Under each frame, write a short sentence explaining what's happening (action, dialogue, or sound).
- 4. Dialogue (if needed):
 - Write speech in speech bubbles or underneath the frame.
- 5. Camera Directions (optional):
 - Indicate camera angles or movement (e.g., "zoom in," "close-up," "pan left").
- 6. Arrows or Symbols:
 - Use arrows to show movement or direction of action.
- 7. Title and Numbering:
 - Give your storyboard a title.
 - Number the frames in order to show the sequence.

A Storyboard...

- Helps plan and organize ideas visually.
- Supports creative thinking and media literacy.
- Builds skills for project planning, communication, and collaboration.
